Abstract

The following article describes the documentary film workshop, “All We’ve Got”, which a multifaith delegation of students and staff from the University of Edinburgh’s Chaplaincy presented at the TCMA Conference in Melbourne on December 2, 2009. It also addresses the background, foundation, and key developments that contributed to the growth of this multifaith chaplaincy, the creation of a documentary film and the feasibility of a delegation travelling to Melbourne to tell their collective story at TCMA and at the Parliament of the World’s Religions. It ends by sharing insights learned and identifying challenges that remain.
